Covetous eyes have already been cast on the Whiddengraham tract. This is pon the Whiddengraham tract. This is now covered with a sturdy growth of furzeclex Europeus), with persistent outcropings of heather. But experts agree that would be well worth all the labor needed clear it up, because it would make possible me of the longest courses in these parts. It is, however, the consensus of the well utormed that chin golfers are not going a suffer for lack of good courses. Meanime, many vexatious questions are already arising, questions which will soon imperatively demand the atention of a duly qualirising, questions which will soon imperarively demand the atention of a duly qualirivel rules committee. Perhaps, however, the question that is Perhaps, however, the question that is a we giving golfers most concern is the question of clubs. Shall the safety be permitted? That is the great cry that is going ap from all chins. There are so many apparently well founded arguments employed by the partisans on both side of this question that nothing less than the forth-coming congress of chin golfers is qualified to make the momentous decision that shall be crystallized into a rule.

Then there in the matter of the treat-ent of the turf. Shall player be allowed o pause in playing a round until the greens eeper has applied fresh lubrication? And f so, how often? Or shall penalties be imposed for such pauses, for each such pauses, in fact? Those who insist that no pauses shall be allowed argue that to allow themwould be to impose an unwarrantable hardship upon the gallery. They argue also that in match play these pauses might allow your weakkneed chin golfer to play for time and hence win victories to which on a basis of pure skill he would not be applicable.

These and other points no less important are all clamoring to be setled. But the world was not made in a day.
